

GIRL GUIDES, IN YOUR POCKET!

Fun Fact

The rain stick was thought to originally have been used in the South American country of Chile. It was made from cactus plant branches that were hollowed out and then dried. The spikes of the cactus were then stuck into the inside and the hollow was filled with some stones or dried beans to make the music.

If you want to see a more traditional rain stick being used, this YouTube video shows exactly why it is called a rain stick: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=riQNqpwXkvE>

How to Play the Rain Stick:

Creative Ideas for Playing the Rain Stick

Image of Chile shown on a map accessed from BBC News
<https://www.bbc.com/news/world-latin-america-19357497>

