

WEEKLY CHALLENGE

Create your own constellation!

For thousands of years, different cultures around the world have looked up at the night sky and imagined their own mythological figures in the stars – warriors, goddesses, and all kinds of real and imaginary animals. Most of the constellations we know today are Greek, but every culture in the world has different interpretations of the stars.

You can create your own!

- Go outside on the next clear night and look up. What do you see?
- Find a group of stars and draw them on a piece of paper. Maybe two stars, or maybe twenty.
- What do you see in that pattern? Maybe a superhero? Maybe your cat? One Girl Guide at camp saw a shopping trolley!
- When you go inside, make a constellation jar for your constellation, and write the story behind it.
- Share it with your Unit and try to find each other's constellations the next time you're on camp!
